> Late 1965 when I moved to Jerusalem I was approached by a former 101 and early Sayeret Matkal officer named "Kokla" (real name Moshe Levin) who later served for many years as one of the toughest operational leaders in Mossad. Already passed away. In 1965 Kokla had a small investigation agency. He asked me to consider joining his agency and work for them in Jerusalem parallel to studying. Never materialized because I had to spend months each winter in the Unit for operations. But because I've used to disappear from class for long periods without explanation rumors with some sexy taste started to develop.
